CIRCULATE

1. The construction of an airfield at Ch'inhsien (108-37, 21-58), begun eight months ago and later suspended for lack of manpower and material,¹ was recently resumed when a request by the Kwangsi² Military District Aviation Bureau for men and material from the Kwangsi Military District Supply and Service Command was granted. The Kwangsi Military District ordered the contractors to complete the work before September 1951.
2. On 10 July one transport and three single-engine fighters landed at Paise (106-34, 23-55) Airfield. The transport left on the same day but the fighters remained at the field. Previously, the field was not being used and only a few ground personnel were stationed there. The transport brought an additional eighteen ground crew personnel.

25X1A 1. [REDACTED] Comment. [REDACTED] paragraph 3, reported construction at this airfield as well as delays caused by manpower and supply shortages between November 1950 and mid-January 1951. 25X1A

25X1A 2. [REDACTED] Comment. Recent indications that western Kwangtung may now be under Kwangsi jurisdiction seem to be confirmed by this report since source gives the Kwangsi, not the Kwangtung, Military District as the authority making decisions on this project at Ch'inhshien, an area well within the border of western Kwangtung.
